THE BEE HIVE!

The Best 50c Linen Skirt at 39 Cents.

You have often paid 50c for a skirt not the equal of these. We have known them to sell elsewhere for 75c. They are made of heavy linen and have a full, three-half yard sweep. These skirts are not "made to order" but are "made to order" about 'em that shows they were built by makers of well fitting skirts. Merely to avoid summer dullness we've marked 'em 39c. A regular $1.50 white Pique Skirt is marked 39c.

Newly Arrived 15c. LAWNs are Now 10c.

Your advantage in having our buyers visit New York City is well shown in this party arriving lot of Lawns. They come in dainty dresses, exquisite corded necks and muslinettes. The patterns are the very latest shown in the Eastern markets. They are just 5c. a yard, for they're marked 10c. instead of 15c. Those 15c. Lawns at 9c. are selling like the proverbial hot cake. You had best come quickly.

A Tremendous Bargain in Ladies' NIGHTGOWNS.

This was a most fortunate purchase indeed. These gowns were made to sell at 75c. There were thirty thirty dozen. We took them all at a price which was a small profit over cost. These skirts are not "made to order" but are "made to order" about 'em that shows they were built by makers of well fitting skirts. Merely to avoid summer dullness we've marked 'em 39c. A regular $1.50 white Pique Skirt is marked 39c.

LIMITED OUTPUT.

Independent Distillers Want the Trust to Co-operate in the Matter.

Mr. John R. Pogue, First Vice-President of the H. R. Pogue Distillery Company of this city, has made arrangements for a meeting of the Kentucky distillers in Louisville for the purpose of limiting the production of Kentucky whiskeys for a period of three to five years.

The meeting will be held at 11 a. m. at the Galt House August 8.

Mr. Pogue believes that unless an agreement is entered into by the whiskey combine and the independent distillers, by which the whiskey production can be limited, there will be a tremendous over-production of whiskey, which will result in a loss to all parties.

From interviews with prominent distillers it seems that they all agree with Mr. Pogue's plan.

Mr. T. J. Bateman said: "I believe that Mr. Pogue is sincere in endeavoring to have the combine and outsiders agree on the question of whiskey production. It is either limited production or ruin. There is no use in doing more than enough whiskey to glut the market. If the combine runs its plants at full capacity the independent distillers will be likewise, and the price of whiskey will sink until the selling price will not pay the revenue tax. It is only policy for us to limit the production and it can be done only by coming to some agreement with the combine."

Mr. W. O. Bonnie, of the firm of Bonnie Bros., said: "Although I am an anti-trust man, yet if the whiskey combine can make an arrangement with the Kentucky distillers to limit the production of whiskey, I will give up co-operation. Unless we wish to repeat the experience of 1902-03, when the production of whiskey was such as to glut the market, only one course is left open; that is to come to an agreement with each other and limit the distilling of whiskey."

REVENUE RULINGS

A Matter of Importance to Banks and Drawers of Checks.

BANKS CANNOT AFFIX STAMPS.

Below is the official circular prohibiting Banks from putting a stamp on checks:

STAMP TAX—CHECKS
Banks must not affix stamps to returned checks presented, and must return to drawer any unstamped check presented for payment. Otherwise, instructions contained in Treasury decision 18,064, provided.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 15, 1899.

Sir: This office is in receipt of your letter of July 6th, 1899, stating that it has come to your knowledge that certain Banks are encouraging a practice of allowing their customers to give checks without stamping same, and when the checks are brought to the Bank the Bank stamps them. As the check is delivered to the payee before it reaches the Bank, in your opinion, such a practice is illegal and a violation of the Revenue Law; also, you state that many of the checks never reach the Bank upon which they are drawn, being taken up before being presented for payment, and the Government would, therefore, lose entirely the amount of the stamp in that particular case. You also state that the Bank has adopted this practice as an advertisement to secure patronage against a rival Bank which requires the customers to stamp their checks at the time they are executed. You ask to be advised in the matter.

You are advised that Banks must not affix stamps to undeposited checks presented, and must return to the drawer any unstamped check presented for payment.

You are directed to notify the Banks that are guilty of the practice herein described that if it is not immediately discontinued they will be reported to the United States District Attorney for prosecution.

The instruction contained in Treasury decision 18,064, dated June 28, 1899, is hereby reiterated to the effect that there was no objection to the affixing by the Bank of the requisite stamps to an unstamped check presented for payment, and the check is stamped at the time it is presented for payment.

This instruction is hereby reiterated to the effect that there was no objection to the affixing by the Bank of the requisite stamps to an unstamped check presented for payment, and the check is stamped at the time it is presented for payment.

LETTER FROM ROME.

Rev. Father Ennis Attends Services at St. Peter's.

SOME CHOICE BITS OF HISTORY.

Rome, June 30th, 1899.
Editor Maysville Leader: Before my sailing for Europe the press of the world was full of ominous news concerning the health of the venerable Pontiff of Rome. Considering that Leo XIII. had long ago counted his three score and ten, I entertained a slight hope of seeing him again. On my arrival I learned that the Holy Father was discharging his usual duties, having been a service of Thanks giving in the Church of St. Peter during the month of May. The Consistory being held on the 25th of June, I hastened to procure a ticket of admission, knowing that the Pope would be present.

A Consistory is always held when new Cardinals are made.

The large hall over the portico of the Vatican basilica presented a magnificent sight. Ecclesiastical dignitaries and the diplomatic corps occupied special places to the right and left of the Pontifical throne. The papal choir, under the direction of the celebrated composer, Lorenzo Perosi, sang the Palestinian mass with expression and finished skill.

The moment the Pope entered the hall surrounded by his court, the people burst out in loud applause and sincere demonstrations of love. The Pontiff looked aged and feeble; withal his alabaster-like face beamed with the sweetest smile, his eyes having lost nothing of that peculiar luster burning there as the flame of charity. Slowly did he raise his hand in benediction over the multitude aided by the presence of this providential man. I noticed that even non-Catholics seemed to share the common enthusiasm of the moment. The new members of the Cardinal College took the oath of office as prescribed by the canon. The voice of Leo XIII. sounded clear and strong when he gave the Pontifical blessing which ended the ceremonies of the Consistory.

On the 26th of June falls the Feast of St. Peter and St. Paul. It appeared to me that all Rome had crossed the Tiber that day to be present at the vesper services in the Church built on the Vatican hill. The main avenues leading to the great square in front of the temple were thronged with people. The interior of the basilica being no vast could easily accommodate all. Byron has beautifully described this Church as "Christ's altar in the star." The smoke from the incense composed of the best voices in the city sang the sublime words of the psalms set to music by ancient masters.

All waited with great expectation for the traditional hymn of the occasion. The Priests of the altar, the smoke from the incense mingled its perfume with that of the flowers; a holy hush came over the place. Strong as the blast of a silver trumpet a tenor voice sang, "Oh, thou, happy Rome, which has been consecrated by the glorious blood of thy apostle. The crucifix on the altar shone by the double choir; it awoke the echoes of the mighty dome, and, like the sound of many waters rolled along the vaults of the Church. Those words, modulated to the rhythm of the century, seemed to me the history of centuries. I realized that I was standing on the very ground once covered by the imperial gardens of Nero. In those gardens Peter and innumerable martyrs had given up their lives for the despised religion of the Nazarene. The author of "Gua Vain" has graphically described the torments of these heroes whose bodies served as burning torches for the night revels of the Emperor and his minions. A new page has been written in the history of mankind; the Christians were now being persecuted by the heathen.

As I came out of the Church the rays of the declining sun were kissing the Cross towering in the dizzy heights where the bold hand of Michael Angelo planned it, no longer a sign of crime but the symbol of love. The exterior of the monumental temple stood for a moment shrouded in darkness; at once its austere outlines were illuminated with light, while the bells were pealing out their farewell to the day.

In my recent ramblings through the city I ran across a precious little object of antiquity that is exceedingly interesting. In a room of the Kircher Museum Prof. Marucci has placed a well preserved piece of wall plaster taken from the palace of the lovers on the Palatine. This learned archeologist discovered it in a house embodied in the crown property by the Emperor Caligula, and generally known by the name of "domusolorum."

After the death of the Emperor this house was turned into a training school for Court pages. It seems that these young fellows were in the habit of representing the ludicrous scenes of their daily life on the walls by means of "graffiti,"—that is to say, by scratching figures with some sharp instrument, as schoolboys are doing in the nineteenth century. Many of them are still extant in the original dwelling. One, carefully cut out and scrupulously put in a frame, was removed to the Kircher Museum by the aforesaid Professor. It is a caricature of the crucifixion of the Savior. The youthful artist must have been a pagan and a friend of some newly converted member of the training school. Instant with the ideas of the age, the first century of the Christian era, he gave a plastic opinion concerning the theology of his fellow-pagan by drawing a Crucifix with the head of an ass nailed to the cross. To the left of it he added the figure of a man in a kneeling position with his hands raised in prayer. The inscription in Greek reads: "Alexamenos adores his God."

After looking for a long time at this document proving the superior intelligence of the learned youth, I came away saying with a smile, "Boys are chips of the same block all the world over."

Strictly pure Paris Green, the kind that makes the flowers, also silver-plated knives, forks and spoons, have decided to cut the price. Plated tea spoons $1 per set; plated table spoons $1.50 and $2 per set of six.

WITH HOME FOLKS.

Mr. Vincent H. Perkins of Chicago Calling on Old Kentucky Friends.

Mr. Vincent H. Perkins, formerly of Toledo, now North Town Supervisor of Chicago, is on a visit to old friends in Kentucky.

Mr. Perkins is in excellent health and speaks in glowing terms of the possibilities of the Windy City.

When asked if he would be a candidate for Mayor to succeed Carter Harrison he replied that so long as he would have the office Mr. Harrison could not be a candidate.

There was strong talk of making him the nominee for Governor of Illinois and that he would undoubtedly win.

Mr. Perkins will be in the Bluegrass several days.

He says Hon. William Jennings Bryan will be in Kentucky this fall and make a number of speeches in behalf of the Gold Standard.

Deafness cannot be cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. The deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a running sound or it perfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; time cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh), that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.
